The paint is dry, the dust is settled and The National Food Lab (The NFL) has moved into our new facilities in Livermore, California. Significant growth over recent years and an expansion of services drove the move from Dublin to one just 6 miles down the road. The NFL houses its business in two facilities – a Technology Center and an Innovation Center. Each location serves as a Center of Excellence for the different facets of work that we perform to bring complete solutions across the product lifecycle.

The Technology Center supports The NFL's technically-oriented businesses of process development, food contaminants, food safety, microbiology, chemistry and packaging. This Center features a pilot plant with the widest array of commercialization equipment in the industry and spacious laboratories to accommodate the high levels of activity in our microbiology and chemistry divisions.

Our new Innovation Center showcases The NFL's creative, trend-setting services with consumer and sensory research spaces and product development laboratories and kitchens. A focal point of this Center is our stunning new test kitchen, overlooking the vineyards of Livermore, which will serve as a lively place for culinary-driven concept development. The facility also has ideation environments to facilitate new concept creation.

The two Centers are linked by environmentally-friendly electric vehicles and state-of-the-art computer and telephone systems to enhance the constant interaction needed to deliver multi-faceted services. All our phone numbers remain the same. Please continue to dial up the same people and same numbers for the exceptional service and technical expertise you have come to expect from The National Food Lab.

You may also notice our new logo. With all our upgrades, moving and remodeling, we thought it was time to refresh our look as well. We think our new tagline "where art meets science" truly describes the work we do, combining creativity with technical excellence.

We thank you for your patience and understanding during our move and look forward to serving you in our new facilities.

Sincerely,
